

POINCARÉ MAY YIELD TO AVERT BREAK Walton Withdraws From Trial; Hearing Ends In Tumult

May Modify Demands To Satisfy England

Trying To Preserve Alliance.
LONDON, November 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—Strong efforts are being made over the weekend on both sides of the channel to preserve the integrity of the Franco-British alliance. There were indications at the foreign office today that France was changing her attitude as to some of her threatened penalties against Germany in the event of failure to give up the ex-crown prince and permit C. inter-allied military control commission to resume its interrupted investigation of German armaments.

Postpone Meeting.
PARIS, November 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—The final effort to save the entente from dislocation will probably not be put over until Monday, as the British cabinet seemingly is not ready to give the final word to Lord Crewe, C. British ambassador here, as to its position on the application of further penalties upon Germany.

The efforts which would be made in London to prevent a break are regarded in political circles here as despairing, the French and British governments being too far apart, it is thought, to make an agreement possible.

It appeared this noon that the meeting of the allied council of ambassadors set for today would probably go on until Monday, although the French had been insisting on the earliest possible settlement of the question of obtaining resumption of allied military control in Germany. All the allied ambassadors excepting the British and Ambassador Herriek, who attends the meetings for his government, were holding themselves in readiness for a call, but it was understood the British ambassador had not received final instructions and that Lord Crewe probably would absent himself if a meeting were called.

It was regarded as improbable that Premier Poincaré would call a meeting today should the British ambassador be unable to participate, although the premier is extremely anxious to have the situation cleared up at the earliest possible moment. He regards the present state of things as very harmful to all the allies, the idea having gained ground that a rupture with Great Britain was imminent and that further delay of a final decision would be likely to develop agitation.

Premier Poincaré is ready to make any concession to the London demands respecting the ex-crown prince, as declared in official circles this morning, and the hope was expressed in quarters near the premier that a compromise might be reached. The prospects of saving the entente were regarded as slight in political circles, however, where M. Poincaré's optimism was not shared because it was felt he would remain firm in demand for action to obtain all of the allied military mission in Germany. The result of the meeting is expected to be on this point, as it is not believed the British cabinet will be willing eventually to approve the use of force in order to secure protection for the allied mission. M. Poincaré holds it is not safe for the allies to give way in this matter believing that the German would take encouragement from it to intensify the resistance to those demands of the peace treaty.

Revives Hopes.
PARIS, November 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—The fact that the postponement of the meeting of the allied council of ambassadors was requested by Lord Crewe, the British ambassador, has slightly revived hopes that a united allied front can be preserved.

It is understood that Premier Poincaré is unwilling to let the question rest, and, according to L. E. Matin, which is supposedly well posted as to (Continued on Page Eight)

British Labor Makes Appeal

LONDON, November 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—The British labor party issued an election manifesto today appealing to the nation in a challenge of the government tariff policy and the whole conception of economic relations underlying it. It argues that tariffs, instead of reducing unemployment, will foster a spirit of profiteering, materialism and selfishness and thus will perpetuate the inequalities in the distribution of the world's wealth which labor means to remove. The manifesto claims the party has a positive remedy for unemployment through the operation of national schemes for productive work with adequate maintenance for those who cannot obtain employment to earn a livelihood for themselves and their families. The labor party promises the English farmer restored prosperity and the farm laborer a living wage through the development of agriculture and establishing machinery for regulating wages and providing credit and state insurance facilities for the farmers and small land owners, and promoting co-operative methods of production and distribution.

Prosecution Near Close

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA., Nov. 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—The board of prosecution moved to complete its case today in the impeachment trial of Governor J. C. Walton. Under a new rule of procedure the sixteen charges of moral turpitude, corruption in office, neglect of duty and incompetence, will be given to the senate court for a verdict before evidence is presented on the remaining six articles in the impeachment bill all of which charge offenses growing out of the executive's martial law declarations in Oklahoma. Possible termination of the trial this month was presaged in the announcement that the prosecution would rest its case late today before adjournment of court over the weekend and that the defense would begin to present its evidence Monday. About ten days will be required by the defense, it was said.

$20,000,000 To Be Used To Combat Rum Smuggling

WASHINGTON, November 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—President Coolidge has given his approval to treasury plans for expansion of the coast guard for prevention of rum smuggling. The plans contemplate expenditure of $20,000,000 for new craft and additional personnel. In addition to the $20,000,000 lump sum, congress will be asked for an appropriation of $8,500,000 for pay and maintenance of the additional personnel. It is proposed to increase the number of commissioned officers from 200 to 353, warrant officers from 4,051 to 7,122.

Out of the $20,000,000 the treasury plans to purchase 20 cruising cutters, costing about $11,000,000; 200 cabin cruising motor boats at $7,050,000, and 100 small speed boats at an approximate cost of $1,000,000. The craft will be of the fastest type known to modern motor engineering and will be designed to stand any kind of weather.

Treasury officials regard the Atlantic and Gulf Coast as presenting their most difficult problem in efforts to combat rum smuggling.

That most of the new craft would be concentrated on those sections.

Tax Cut Becomes Virtual Certainty

BY DAVID LAWRENCE.
Copyright, 1923.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Tax revision by the coming congress has become virtually a certainty over night.

Arrangement of the candidacy of Senator Hiram Johnson for the Republican presidential nomination, while emphasizing for the moment foreign issues, is to be followed by a demand for a reduction in the tax burdens of the American people.

William G. McAdoo's informal approval of statements by his convention manager that he would be a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination and the assertion of Mr. McAdoo himself that not only can taxes be lowered, but a soldier bonus paid, too, has made it certain that the primary issue of the immediate future will be taxation.

Talking with another prominent Democrat, whose name is being mentioned as a possible compromise, this correspondent asked what would be the issue of the next campaign. He answered:

"If the Republicans do not revise the taxes we will have Secretary Mellon's figures and statements as the basis of the Democratic national platform."

The significance of this statement can not be overestimated. It means that the Democrats in the United States senate will line up for tax revision and that a coalition of conservative Democrats and Republicans is more than enough to obtain the necessary majority as against the radicals of both parties. It would not be surprising if a non-partisan bloc of the conservatives was finally organized to prevent the whole tax program from being wrecked by announcements of the radicals that would ordinarily force a presidential veto.

The Democrats are anxious, of course, not to contribute to Republican prestige by helping them hurdle the barriers of radicalism in their own ranks, but the pressure from all parts of the country is much more likely to supersede partisan desire.

The dispatches about the candidacies of Hiram Johnson and William G. McAdoo weren't really news at all to the national capital for both men have been aware of the efforts of their friends and organizers ever since the last campaign of 1920. What is significant is that both Mr. McAdoo and Mr. Johnson should select this week as the opportune moment for throwing their hats in the ring.

Hiram Johnson has been intending to fight for the presidential nomination for some time. When he made his trip to Europe last summer the late President Harding was much concerned about what Mr. Johnson would say upon his return. The mass meeting arranged (Continued on Page Four)

Governor Charges Unfair Treatment

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA., Nov. 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—The impeachment trial of Governor J. C. Walton broke up in a tumult today, after the executive, declaring that he was not receiving a fair trial, stalked from the courtroom with his counsel and precipitated a clash between I. T. Sprague, a member of his legal staff, and Tom Anglin, president of the senate.

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA., Nov. 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—Governor J. C. Walton and his entire defense counsel withdrew from the trial today after the governor had declared before the court that he could not have a fair trial and "could no longer stand the humiliation to me and my attorneys."

With no forwarding the governor stated he had "reached the conclusion that I cannot have a fair trial in this court."

Turning on his heel he walked from the room with his wife, and his counsel trailing after them.

The prosecution, recovering from its surprise, summoned another witness, but the effort to proceed with the trial was futile.

A motion was made authorizing the court to appoint counsel for the executive, but was defeated. Members of the court declared that the governor's abrupt leaving-taking was evidence that he desired no representation. A remark by Senator Anglin, while debating this motion, brought on the threatened violence that broke up the session.

Scarcely had the court dissolved, however, when a second encounter was threatened when Senator E. A. Durnell, of Clinton, contradicted a statement of John Goble, of Guthrie, Goble's square off for action but the two were separated.

(By United Press)
"I have reached the conclusion that I cannot have a fair trial in this court I hereby withdraw."

Governor J. C. Walton amazed the senate court of impeachment by rising from the midst of his counsel at the center table and making this statement.

"The governor's statement came immediately after testimony regarding the Ku Klux Klan offered by the executive's counsel had been barred. Indeed, the trial could proceed. Walton said of face and in a voice that was not entirely steady, rose slowly to his feet and began to speak.

It was the first time he has personally been heard.

"I have been sitting here fighting for my honor and my life for ten days," he said.

"I don't wish to criticize any honorable member of the court, but I have reached the conclusion that I cannot have a fair trial in this court."

"Therefore for my own sake and for the sake of my wife and children, upon whom the stain of this unfair trial will reflect, I hereby withdraw from the trial."

"You may proceed as you see fit."

The governor's action took the court by surprise and great commotion ensued for a time after which the trial proceeded without him.

Motion Picture Splendid Medium For Education, Speaker Tells Club Women

Nearly one hundred members of the local women's clubs greeted Mrs. William H. Sharp, of Columbus, chairman of the Motion Picture Division of the State Federation of Women's clubs, at a banquet in Trinity church last night.

Following an excellent musical program given by Miss Alice Blake, violinist, Mrs. R. G. Gilmore, soprano, and Mrs. J. E. Stockham, pianist, Mrs. Sharp presented the work of her department to the local club women.

"The motion picture is a splendid medium for education and propaganda," said Mrs. Sharp. "The motion pictures are convenient of access, convenient in point of time, and, for the most part, shown at reasonable prices."

We attend the movies in a plastic state of mind, and whether we desire it or not, we are bound to receive some definite impressions from every picture we see."

"Since this is true," continued the speaker, "it is our responsibility to see that we are furnished with the finest themes."

Mrs. Sharp made a strong appeal for a head of the state censorship board. "When the matter came up for discussion previous to the election in 1922, the representatives of the various welfare organizations in the state were told by the Director of Education that the law did not need to be read in such a way that the department of education would be forced, to appoint a head to the censorship board, but that it might be left so that the department could appoint such a head if the director felt the need of such an appointee. Mrs. Riegel has never appointed such a head to the state board of censors," said Mrs. Sharp, "and he gives 'economy' as his reason."

"During the year when there were three members of the State board of censorship," continued the speaker, "the department spent $23,895.00. This last year, with no head of the board, and but two young assistants aiding the department of education in this work, the amount spent has been $23,615.00 a saving of $280."

"This is foolish economy," said Mrs. Sharp, "if it is wise economy to do without the heads of departments, then why have a superintendent of education who has not got along without the governor himself?"

Mrs. Sharp asked the members of the local clubs to promote a movement that would put a motion picture machine in every school building and every church. She advocated special movies for children to be shown in the commercial houses every Saturday morning or at least every two weeks, and urged the women's clubs to take up this matter with local exhibitors. Closing her address Mrs. Sharp asked that the local women's clubs cooperate with the exhibitors to bring better films before the public, by creating public opinion in favor of the highest type of picture. "The exhibitor wants to give the people what they want, show him that you want the best," she said.

The evening's program was planned by the Woman's Literary Club. Mrs. E. H. Blazer, president, welcomed the other club members and introduced the speaker. The local club women presented Mrs. Sharp with chrysanthemums as a mark of their appreciation of her message.

Group 15 of the Ladies Aid Society of Trinity was responsible for the banquet which was served at tables decorated in Thanksgiving colors.

Bobbie and Jane Visit Joyous Toylands Which Thrilled Youthful Hearts Today

(Sydney Strange)

"Once you've crossed its borders, you may never return again."

It was just a snatch of an old song we were humming as we looked at the shop windows Saturday afternoon. We were scarcely conscious of the time until we felt a tug on the sleeve and looked down to see our small neighbors, Bobbie and Jane, looking up at us eagerly.

"Come on, Sydney, take us to see the toys. Mamma's at the beauty parlor and won't be through for an hour. Please, Sydney." Then we knew that we had been humming the old song about happy girls and boys in Toyland.

So taking Jane's exquisitely gloved little hand on one side and Bob's grimey little fist on the other, we crossed the borders of the land of endless fascination. And as we stepped over the border we ran right into a Humpty-Dumpty circus, with a real tent, and lions, and elephants, and clowns and trapezes, ladders and ropes, even a real sawdust circus with a ring. But a loud buzzing noise and the sound of boy's voices called us to a corner where the most wonderful train ran along through a little town and rang a danger signal at the station so that there wouldn't be any accident at the crossing. A little cog railroad pulled a string of cars, and a loud buzzer and a bell and a button started a big choo-choo that speeded around a track. "Dad would like that," said Bob.

Then we missed Jane. So we hurried along past a whole row of yellow taxis, and the Toonerville trolley waiting for passengers, and there were Krazy Kat and Ignatz and Warner Google sitting up on Spark Plug, who was all covered up with a yellow blanket.

"Oh, wait," said Bob, and was soon lost in admiration of a nigger filled with the most fascinating little bottles and tubes that would make any little boy want to call in the gang and put on a Magician's Show for them.

And when we finally found Jane she was dancing up and down in front of the most adorable little kitchen cabinet, with real soda, and breakfast food all ready on the shelves, and a kitchen stove that could have a fire built in it, and a wee waffle iron on which the young housewife could prepare breakfast. And there was a doll's crib big enough for a real baby.

A little music box was playing Christmas music, and Jane and Bobbie were humming happily when we looked up and saw their mother calling us back to the land of grown-ups.

But the charm of the land of toys still lingers.

Father and Son Banquets Are Delightful Affairs

Two big meetings in keeping with "Father and Son Week" were held last night in the United Brethren church, where splendid did programs were presented for the entertainment of men and boys who gathered to celebrate the week in appropriate manner.

United Brethren

Close to one hundred were in attendance at the United Brethren gym at 7:30, when the program opened, and from then on there was something doing every minute of the time. A luncheon was served early in the evening and the splendid program followed.

Fred Lorey was introduced as chairman. He first explained the occasion of "Father and Son" week, stressing that "the child is father of the man." He then called on Rev. E. H. Dabney, who gave a short talk appropriate to the occasion.

A short program of songs was then sung, followed by another short talk, this time by E. W. Smith.

A feature of the well-balanced program was then staged in the appearance of Charles C. Bennett, who gave a humorous dialogue worked around the names of a number of the men and boys at the meeting. The crowd was kept in an uproar during Mr. Bennett's appearance.

Fred Lacamp spoke on matters pertaining to the special week in honor of the groups present at the meeting. Mr. Lorey pleased with a solo, "If Winter Comes," accompanied by Lawrence Christopher, who also played the piano for all the singing at the meeting.

Marion Proch, amiable superintendent of the U. B. Sunday School, was another speaker.

"Oh, such wonderful clarity!"

Earlier in the evening when he tried to speak he was "chased" from the speaker's platform, as the result of well laid plans by members of one of the boys' classes, who later attempted to win favor with him again by presenting the superintendent with a "beautiful" bouquet of celery, lettuce and turnips.

"What kind of tubes is he using?" These questions were numerous when Albert Reinhardt, of the committee in

OBITUARY

Raymond LeRoy Miller

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Miller was darkened Sunday, November 11th, when the death angel took away Raymond LeRoy, bright little four year old son of the household. It is so hard to give up one so full of life and sunshine. A friend of all who knew him, but God needed him, another jewel for his kingdom, and we must submit to His will. It is such a comfort and promise that we will see him again, our little one who God loaned us for such a short time.

Raymond LeRoy Miller was born November 10, 1919, and was 1 year and one day old. Death came after a few days illness of epithelitis. Suit To Close Five Cincinnati Roadhouses

CINCINNATI, O., November 17.—(By the Associated Press)—Proceeding under the padlock law of the national prohibition amendment, the government here today filed suit in the United States district court asking that five roadhouses in this vicinity be declared nuisances. The roadhouses named are the Stockton Club, near Hamilton; Nine Mile House, Meadow Tim; Grandview and Steve Radels, near Dent, O.

Violations of the liquor law, which have, it is alleged, occurred at the roadhouses, given cause for closing them.

United States District Judge Smith

Hickensloper set the cases for hearing next Saturday. The suits were filed by Assistant United States District Attorney Harvets E. May, who claims these roadhouses are public nuisances.

In the suit against the Stockton Club, Harvey Langdon, who was arrested yesterday in connection with the robbery of a United States mail truck here in 1921, was named as one of the defendants. He is said to be one of the proprietors of the place.

Walton

senate case was thrown into uproar by attempt of Senator Anglin, present pro tem, to attack Attorney Sprague, one of Walton's counsel.

Anglin was held off by half a dozen senators and the court took a recess for twenty minutes.

Senator Anglin had stated that he understood that the governor had been with a woman, Sprague, who was leaving the room, said he did not believe any such statement had been made. Anglin screamed something about being called a liar and hurled a paper at Sprague, then attempted to peer over the desk toward him.

The disturbance finally was quieted down.

Refuses To Negotiate With Striking Engineers

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—An uncompromising attitude was adopted yesterday by C. H. Hix, vice president of the Virginian Railway, who before the United States Railroad Labor Board informed representatives of the striking engineers and firemen that he could not comply with the suggestion of Ben W. Hooper, chairman of the board, that the disputants get together and settle their grievances.

Hix declared that the men's grievances were not sufficient basis for a strike and that many new men had been employed and others were on the waiting list and it would not be fair to turn out these new men for the old employees who, he said, had sacrificed their standing with the company. Besides many old, loyal employees who refused to go on strike, new men had sacrificed their seniority rights on other roads to work for the Virginian because of better pay and conditions, he said.

He said the strikers had ignored the company's request to refer the dispute to the labor board and had favored the board's citation to avoid a strike pending a hearing.

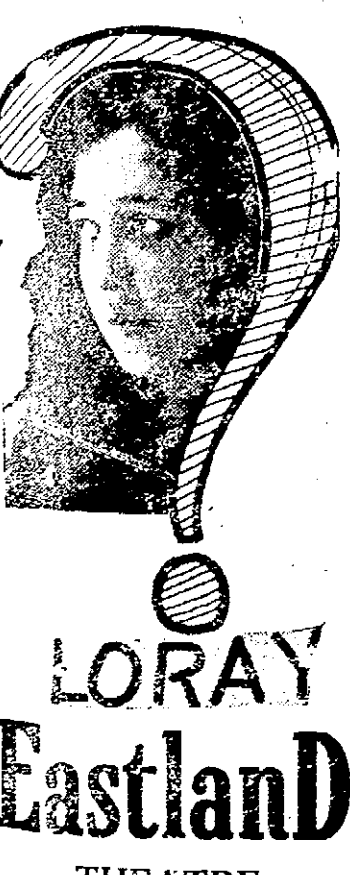

Chairman Hooper said yesterday that unless the disputants could get together the board would continue hearing of the case and render a decision.

Union Men Adjourn.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Officers of the 16 standard railroad labor unions, after meeting here for three days for the purpose of discussing the political situation and legislative matters they may desire to see taken up by Congress, adjourned today without making public any conclusions reached. D. B. Robertson, chief of the Brotherhood of Engineers and chairman of a legislative sub-committee, it was said, would prepare a report upon the deliberations for consideration of the legislative boards of the organizations represented. Tentative support for a plan to amend the transportation act so as to abolish the railroad labor board was indicated at the session, but the matter was left for final consideration of the union bodies concerned.

STATE SCORES

STAGG FIELD, November 17.—Chicago was leading State by a score of 7 to 3 at the end of the second period.

CHICAGO, November 17.—(By the Associated Press)—Ohio State and Chicago in their annual gridiron battle on Stagg Field here today with almost ideal weather conditions prevailing. A cool west breeze was tempered by a warm sun that peeked at intervals through cloud banks.

Approximately 30,000 persons saw the game, the fourth between the two schools and the third to be played on Stagg Field. The two previous games here were won by Ohio State. Chicago defeated Ohio State at Columbus last year. More than 3,000 Ohio State fans accompanied their team.

Harry Thomas, Chicago right half, who was disqualified for the Illinois game two weeks ago because of his scholastic standing, was declared eligible for the Ohio State game by the faculty just prior to the game.

Although Ohio State has won only one extra point game this year, the Buckeye team's forward passing showed against Purdue last week, gave spectators hope for a close score.

First Period
Ohio won the toss and chose the south goal. Lampe kicked off to Southern who was down on his 26-yard line. Workman punted out of bounds on Chicago's 14-yard line. John Thomas made five yards off right tackle. He was hurt, being kicked on the head, but resumed play. John Thomas punted through guard for three yards. Pratt punted to Ohio's 21-yard line. Workman returned the kick, his punt landing on Chicago's 22-yard line. Pratt made two yards around right end. Then Harry Thomas cut past left tackle for a first down on Chicago's 30-yard line.

Red Cross Mission of Mercy To Continue Providing Annual Drive Is a Success

Is mercy a quality of your soul? Then if it is, have you backed up the spiritual quality with a donation to the more substantial acts of mercy carried on hourly by the Red Cross, which is now conducting its seventh annual roll call drive for members and funds to carry on its work?

Through your assistance, asked in this drive, now being carried on locally by the Seaboard County Chapter, the Red Cross mission of mercy may continue to be carried out.

The funds asked are to meet local needs; to correct cases which, quietly ministered to by the Red Cross, seldom reach the public eye.

The Seaboard County chapter is living up, through its work, to the expression of John Barton Hyatt, general chairman of the American Red Cross, who in announcing the present campaign, said:

"The American Red Cross is welding itself into the life of the nation in times of peace as it did in the days of war. Its vigilance and its power to act quickly and efficiently to allay human suffering wherever it occurs depends upon its resources. The equipment of our great army of mercy must never be allowed to rust.

"The record during the past is one of which we may be justly proud. In Greece and in Japan we aided materially in relieving the havoc of crushing disasters. In every corner of our country the work has steadily progressed and broadened.

"The vision of future conquests over human suffering should inspire us to make this Roll Call memorable. Let the Chapter Workers tell the record of achievements to the people. We ask only that we may still further serve."

Nor does the local chapter confine emergency work in disasters. Only yesterday it sent 15 Christmas bags on their way to the Cane Zone, where the contents will lead to the holiday enjoyment of American soldiers stationed there, far from their own homes and the customary joys of the season. This is also part of a nationwide project of the Red Cross, which is seeing to it that not an American soldier, however distant, and inaccessible his station, is overlooked Christmas.

Among the useful articles sent in the bags, selected from a necessarily short list because of the length of the shipment to be made, were mechanical pencils and leads, games, tobacco, handkerchiefs, knives, combs and memoranda books.

IF CHANGE OF VENUE IS GRANTED
DAVIS TRIAL MAY BE HEARD HERE

WEST UNION, Nov. 16.—(Special to the Daily Times)—Judge Will P. Stephenson, in common pleas court here Friday, took under advisement a motion made by attorneys for Robert Davis, convicted last summer of first degree murder seeking a change of venue for the trial of the case.

The motion, filed by Judge A. Z. Blair of Portsmouth and Atty. F. A. Davis of West Union, counsel for Davis, was heard by the court after a motion filed by Prosecuting Attorney J. R. B. Kessler and Atty. C. E. Rohrer, representing the state, had been also taken under advisement.

About fifteen affidavits were filed by both sides supporting their motions.

The defense contended that a fair trial could not be had in Adams county owing to public sentiment. The Davis case has been to the Supreme Court of the state after the prison was convicted and sentenced to a life term. While Davis was in the death annex to the penitentiary, the Court of Appeals granted the prayer of his attorneys that he be allowed a new trial because a relative of George Webb, the state man, had been a member of the jury commission which drew the names of the jury.

The case was taken to the supreme court by the state, and the Court of Appeals was sustained.

Davis has been transferred to the county jail until retrial. Judge Stephenson grants the request of the state for assignment of the case in Adams county, it will be set for trial early next month, it is thought.

If the request of the defense for change of venue is granted, the case will be taken to either Seaboard or Brown county, is the belief of attorneys.

YALE BEATS TIGERS

NEW HAVEN, CONN., November 17.—(By the Associated Press)—The Princeton Tiger, somewhat battered but still game and determined, groined its defiance today to an unbeaten Yale team in the 23-yard line. Eighty thousand people saw the second of "the three" games of 1923 Yale kicked off after gaining much ground on the exchange of punts, scored a touchdown after negotiating a 40-yard forward pass and executing several line plays. Pond scored the touchdown and Maltory kicked goal.

No more scoring resulted in the first period, although Yale made another first down.

Early in the second period, neither team worked to advantage. Princeton made a first down but was checked when Yale intercepted a forward pass. After losing 16 yards on an attempted forward pass, Yale kicked. Princeton replied with a 10-yard punt sent in Gorman at quarter and Williams replied with a 10-yard punt sent in Gorman at quarter and Williams replied with a 10-yard punt sent in Gorman at quarter.

Princeton again kicked, however, and after making first down Yale returned the punt. Then Luman intercepted a forward pass, carrying the ball to Princeton's 15-yard line where Maltory booted a drop kick for three more points for Yale.

Later in the period, Maltory booted another field goal from the 23-yard line, making the score: Yale, 13; Princeton, 0.

Princeton made two first downs early in the period, but was forced to kick. The Tigers again received the ball at mid-field on Neal's poor kick, but lost it on a fumble and Stevens ran 40 yards giving the Bulldog the ball on the Princeton 26-yard line. Shortly afterward Nedlinger, who replaced Neal, plugged over for another touchdown, making the score: Yale, 20; Princeton, 0. As it remained when the third period ended.

Taking the ball by intercepting a forward pass on the Princeton 28-yard line Yale smashed the line for another touchdown, Nedlinger going across on a 14-yard buck. Stevens kicked goal making the score: Yale, 27; Princeton, 0.

P. H. S. Has Lead

At end of first half of the game between P. H. S. and Trade Hi, of Columbus, on the Sixteenth-street lot this afternoon, the score was 19 to 0 in favor of P. H. S.

On the night of Nov. 21st we expect to begin an old-time revival in our new Mission hall. We have secured the services of Rev. Wm. Duncan of Ashland, Ky., as our evangelist. Rev. Duncan has had great experience in the gospel ministry, having been evangelist, pastor, district superintendent and various offices, is an excellent preacher and you should not miss this opportunity of hearing him preach. The meeting will continue through two Sundays.

On the last Sunday of the meeting Dec. 2nd, we expect to dedicate our new Mission hall just completed. We expect the saints of God from far and near to be with us at that time as it will be a day of jubilee and celebration for what God has done for us. We expect to have a grand love feast at 10:30 and the dedication sermon at 2:30.

"THE CRUCIFIXION"
Will be the subject of Evangelist M. R. White's message tonight at the Nauvoo United Brethren Church. Tomorrow marks the closing of a wonderful revival of two weeks. These have indeed been days of real blessing and manifestation of God's presence and power. Our church has had a genuine quickening of the Holy Spirit and seventeen precious souls have been converted to Christ. Rev. White has preached in the power and demonstration of the Holy Spirit, and rendered a great service to God and man. Hear his closing messages of tonight and tomorrow.

ATTITUDE OF CHURCH TOWARDS LABOR
Why should the attitude of the Church be any different towards labor as a class than any other group of individuals? Christ is no respecter of persons, and He expects His church to be the same.

Yet the church is accused of favoring one class above another. This may be true in some instances but it cannot be true in a general way and especially among those churches who take seriously their divinely appointed mission in the world. Certainly the churches of Portsmouth welcome the laboring class and all other classes to their hospitable doors.

The "Church and Labor" will be the special subject for consideration by Rev. E. H. Dailer, at the First United Brethren Church, corner of Seventh and Gay streets, and all who are anxious to hear a practical gospel message are urged to attend the Sunday evening service at seven o'clock. Judging from the splendid crowd that heard the discussion on "The Attitude of Labor Towards the Church" last Sunday night, a large congregation will be present to hear the other side of this most important issue.

John's managers can apply which is only another way of taking precautions in case something happens.

Mr. McAdoo has stirred up the issue, however, and from a political viewpoint it will be up to the Republican administration to prove that his plan is unworkable before it can be passed any way.

If there is any way to get a bonus bill through the Republicans will be the first to want to see it passed because this is a campaign, but as between tax revision and a soldier bonus—if they should have to choose one or the other—the prospect at the present writing, due of course, to the reaction thus far observed, is that tax revision would take precedence.

What will happen when congress reassembles nobody knows, but the cause of tax revision has received a remarkable impetus in the last 48 hours throughout the country.

In West Union
Rev. John Collins Jackson went to West Union to-day to hold services there to-morrow in the Presbyterian church.

Miss Dolly Wise

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Dear Dolly—Do you think it proper for an old maid to tell the exact depth of a mud hole on Chillicothe street which she sounded with her foot, especially to a mixed crowd? Dolly, I drive a car and every time I go out something always happens to it. I think maybe the salesman forgot to tell me something that I ought to know, so I am asking you and I hope that you will be considerate enough to tell me. A friend of mine told me that I should study a grade before taking it and find out which gear would work the best. Then I should not change gears on the grade. Now that sounds all right in every day talk, but there isn't anything like that in the Blue Book. I don't see what I am going to do unless you can suggest something. Dolly, I would also like a little advice on the matrimonial question. I am a young bachelor in the middle twenties, a beautiful blonde (natural) with blue eyes and sandy hair. I weigh 140 pounds and am a perfect 38. To be perfectly frank I think I am the cat's paw. What kind of a girl do you think would make me a good wife? I have an unblemished character.

SANDY SAM.

Listen, Sandy, old maids are privileged characters, so don't get yourself in trouble by criticizing what they do and what they don't do. I think any of them could give you a few lessons on how to run an automobile, climb grades, in everything. And speaking of your own handsome self, they could probably tell you how to curl your blonde locks or powder your pink nose to perfection. I can't speak for the girls except to say that the majority of them in the matrimonial market are looking for a man and not a molly-coddle.

Dear Dolly—Kindly give me a remedy that will cure eczema of the scalp. Also tell me if "The Covered Wagon" has been shown here.

THANK YOU.

Remedies for improving the blood are advantageous and often necessary in cases of eczema. You might moisten the scalp with glycerine and then wash with castile soap. If this does not have the desired effect consult a physician. "The Covered Wagon" has not been in Portsmouth, as yet, but I understand it is coming ere long.

NEW BOSTON READER WHO SENT CLIPPING—You must be asleep half the time or you would know that they get wobbly as often as the next one. If you will make a few inquiries about the person mentioned you will not be surprised at anything they do. You are evidently not familiar with the names and addresses and social standing of every person in town. If you were you would not wonder at some of the things you see and hear.

Dear Dolly—I am writing to see if you know of any good man who is capable of working in a modern shoe shop, and could run a Goodyear Sitcher. If you do, please tell them to write to H. C. Brummett, Jenkins, Ky. Wages run from $30 to $36 per week.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

RIDDLE LAND

Humpty Dumpty himself—no other.

RIDDLE LAND, "Riddle Land!" sang Nancy. "We're going to Riddle Land to see the Riddle Lady and I'm glad!"

The Fairy Queen smiled. "I'm glad, too," she said. "And I'm sure you won't be disappointed, for it's one of the most curious places in my kingdom—or my nine hundred and ninety-nine kingdoms I should say."

"What are we to do there?" asked Nick, Nancy's twin brother.

"Nothing," said the Fairy Queen. "That is, nothing but enjoy yourself. All little boys and girls enjoy riddles, and when the Riddle Lady says a word that she would love to have you, I promised her that you should go at once."

"Oh, thank you!" cried both twins together. "How do you get there?"

"By just wishing," said the Queen. "Four magic green shoes, know the way. Are they on tight?"

"Tight as pain," said Nick, stamping his foot.

"You'll know the place when you come to it," the Fairy Queen went on to say. "The chimneys are all question marks and the houses in Riddle Land spell WHAT. The people all have pockers between their eyes from guessing so hard and Humpty Dumpty is mayor."

At that minute there was a loud knocking at the palace door and Nimble Pook, the Fairy Queen's servant, bowed in a visitor. A most pompous looking person, dressed in red plush, and in a white suit, with a white waist, his coat tails were of such length as to show how important he was. Humpty Dumpty himself—no other—broad of neck and fat of cheek and stomach of no small proportion.

He leaned forward slightly and straightened—how, no doubt, yet nobody could say that he had bent by an inch in the middle.

"Hearing that our visitors are such important little people," he began, "I came myself to escort them to Riddle Land and give them the key to Riddle Town. At your service, my dears."

And so saying, he handed the twins a most enormous key that looked as though it might unlock a mountain. "If it suits your highnesses, I shall take these children with me now. The Riddle Lady was writing a new riddle when I left. Indeed it was almost finished. Dick Red-Cap, the tower errier, was out with his trumpet and the people were beginning to gather in the square. The person who guesses the riddle first gets a prize."

"Yes, yes," said the Queen, waving them away. "And see how smart you are and how many riddles you can guess, kiddies. Goodby!"

Humpty Dumpty bowed again stiffly and away they all went. (To Be Continued)

THOUGHT BACK WOULD BREAK

Nothing Helped until She Began Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"When my baby was born," says Mrs. Poslusny, 106 High Street, Bay City, Michigan, "I got up too soon. It made me so sick that I was tired of living and the weakness ran me down something awful. I could not get up out of bed mornings on account of my back. I thought it would break in two, and if I started to do any work I would have to lie down. I do not believe that any woman ever suffered worse than I did. I spent lots of money, but nothing helped me until I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I felt a whole lot better after the first bottle, and I am still taking it for I am sure it is what has put me on my feet."

If you are suffering from a displacement, irregularities, backache, nervousness, headache or any other form of female weakness you should write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Allments Peculiar to Women." It will be sent you free upon request. This book contains valuable information.

Agricultural Notes

EDITORIAL NOTE—These articles are written by an expert and The Times unhesitatingly advises their careful reading. They will be of great profit to you.

"All Aboard" For Columbus. Seeing the Far East and the Far West from comfortable seats in a lecture hall at one hour, out in the open playing games and practicing stunts the next, and hearing speakers like Gov. A. V. Donahoe the next—this is what Ohio's 700 boy and girl county club champions will be doing in Columbus next week, November 19 to 24, the ninth annual Club Week.

Scioto County's champions who will enjoy this big week are: Forrest Campbell, Charles Schmitz, Earl Bennett, Bertha VanHoose, Ruth Coles, Fred Borzetta and Juanita Boynton. Ruth Coles will act as champion for the party. They will leave Monday morning and return Saturday.

Dean Alfred Vivian of the state college of agriculture will describe, with the aid of illustrations, how children in other lands live and play, what the Orient is like, and what the United States outside of Ohio looks like. Other speakers will take such topics as "What Is On Your Book Shelf?" "The Children's Share of the Family Income,"

"Music Appreciation," and "Courtship That Count."

But demonstrations and playlets, some given by the club youngsters themselves, will take more of the school girls will give "The King of Foods," and a group of Smith-Hughes pupils will stage "An Afternoon With Some of Our Club Girls."

Some time will be given to demonstrating improved practices in cooking, sewing and floral arrangement, for the girls, and plant, culture, making up buttons, hog judging and the like for the boys.

On Thursday, after a series of sight-seeing trips to points of interest in Columbus, Dean Vivian will announce the state club champions and present the state medals. Along with this will be a program for the county winners, and a list of impromptu "stunts" given by the club boys and girls.

Best Since 1920

A farmer in Ohio today is in a better position than the average farmer of the nation, and at that the average farmer in the United States is better off than at any time during the past three years.

This is the conclusion of specialists in rural economics at the Ohio State University after examining figures made available recently by the Federal Bureau of Labor. The present price-index is the most favorable for the farmer since 1920, the economists say, particularly since it comes at the time of year when farmers have something to sell.

While the index of prices for all agricultural commodities has gone from 110 to 123, the index for non-agricultural commodities has dropped in the past year from 170 to 164.

Gradually the farmer's purchasing power is climbing to the level of the city worker. A year ago he could get but 64 cents worth of non-agricultural commodities with a dollar's worth of his farm products, as compared to the normal ratio of 101.3. Now his purchasing power is 75.

Ohio farmers, however, have seen the price index of Ohio farm products go from 123 in 1922 to 135 this fall. So the Ohio farmer's purchasing power has risen from 72 in 1922 to 82 now, or seven points higher than the average of the country.

OHIO ALFRED A. KNOFFING. OREGON A. SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

Hubert Stane, just out of prison, where he served a term for forgery, visits a northern port of the Hudson Bay Company. Stane meets Gerald Ainley, friend of brighter days, and a midnight meeting is agreed upon between the two men.

One of the governors of the Hudson Bay Company arrives at the post and Ainley, who is an employee, goes to welcome him. Stane makes the acquaintance of a beautiful Indian girl. Because Ainley promises to visit Stane's camp late at night, the latter goes to his little canvas tent to await the coming of his one-time friend.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
Away to the north the sky flamed with crimson glory, then the sun shot up red and golden. A new day had broken; and Stane had watched through the brief night of the Northland summer for a man who had not appeared and he was now assured, would not come.

He laughed bitterly, and rising kicked the fire together, threw on fresh fuel, and after one look towards the still sleeping Post, returned to the tent, wrapped himself in a blanket, and shortly after fell asleep.

Three days later he was awakened by a clatter of voices and the clamor of barking dogs, passing from sleep to full wakefulness like a healthy child. Kicking the blanket from him he slipped on his moccasins and stepped outside where the source of the clamor at once manifested itself. A party of Indians had just reached their camp, and were exchanging greetings with another party, evidently that whose tepees stood on the meadow outside the fort, for among the women he saw the Indian girl who had fled through the willows after the counteracting scene with him. He watched her with indifferent eyes for a moment or two, then securing a canvas bucket went down to the river for water, and made his toilet. That done, he cooked his breakfast, ate it, tidied up his camp, and lighting a pipe strolled into the enclosure of the Post. In the Square itself he noticed the plump gentleman who had landed the day before, talking to a cringing half-breed, whilst a couple of ladies with him watched the aborigines outside the store with curious eyes. Stane glanced further afield. Two men were busy outside the warehouse, a second half-breed sprawled on the bench by the store, but the man for whom he had waited through the night was not in sight.

With a grimace of disappointment he moved towards the store. As he did so a little burst of mellow laughter sounded, and turning swiftly he saw the man whom he was looking for round the corner of the warehouse accompanied by a girl, who laughed heartily at some remark of her companion. Stane halted in his tracks and looked at the pair who were, perhaps a dozen yards or so away. The monochrome Ainley could not but be aware of his presence, yet except that he kept his gaze resolutely averted, he gave no sign of being so. But the girl looked at him frankly, and as she did so, Hubert Stane looked back, and caught his breath, as he had reason to.

Her gray eyes met Stane's quite frankly, without faltering, then turned nonchalantly to her companion, and as Ainley flashed a swift glance in his direction, and then replied with a shrug of his shoulders, he easily divined that the girl had asked a question about himself. They passed him at half a dozen yards distance Ainley with his face set like a flint, the girl with a scrutinizing sideways glance that set the blood rioting in Stane's heart. He stood and watched them until they reached the wharf, saw them step into a canoe, and then, both of them paddling, they thrust out to the broad bosom of the river.

Not till then did he avert his gaze, and turn again to the store. The great man of the company was still talking to the half-breed, and the other half-breed had risen from his seat and was staring into the store. He looked around as Stane approached him.

"By gar," he said enthusiastically, "dat one very fine squaw-girl dere." Stane looked forward through the open doorway, and standing near the long counter, watching a tall Indian bartering with the factor, saw the beautiful Indian girl from the neighboring camp. He nodded an affirmative, and seeing an opportunity to obtain information turned and spoke to the man.

"Yes, but that girl there with Mr. Ainley—"

"Oh, M'sieu. But she no squaw-girl. She grand person who make ze tour with ze governor."

"And Mr. Ainley, what is he doing at Fort Malsum?"

"Ah, M'sieu Ainley! He also is ze great man. He is to be among the governors—"

Stane made no vocal reply to this. He nodded carelessly and passed into the store. Factor Rodwell looked round as he entered, and surveyed him with a measuring eye, as if taking stock of a new acquaintance, then gave him a curt nod and resumed his barter with the Indian. His assistant being also busy for the moment, Stane turned towards the Indian girl whose liquid eyes were regarding him shyly, and addressed her in her native dialect.

"Little sister, why did you run from me yesterday?"

"I had never seen such a man before."

"Never seen a white man before?" he cried in mock amazement.

"No, I did not say that I had never seen a white man before. I have seen many. The priest up at Fort of God, the doctor priest at the Last Hope, the factor there, and M'sieu Ainley who came to our camp yesterday. And there is also this fat man they call the governor—a great chief, it is said; though he does not look as such a great one should look. Yes, I have seen many white men, but none like thee before."

Hubert Stane was frowning once more at the girl's directness, but strove to recover himself by a return of compliments.

"Well," he laughed, "for that matter there are none so many like thyself in the world. I wonder what thy name is?"

The girl flushed with pleasure at the compliment, and answered his question without reserve.

"I am Miskodeed."

"The Beauty of the Spring! Then thou art well-named, little sister!" The girl flushed with pleasure. The flame that had leapt in her dark eyes at their first meeting, burned once more, and when he left her in terror, the conversation which had drifted can only be conjectured. But at that precise moment the tall Indian called to her.

"Miskodeed!"

The girl moved swiftly to him and with a gesture that was almost royal the Indian pointed to a pile of trade goods lying upon the long counter. The girl gathered as much as was possible in her arms, and staggered with her load from the store, and as Factor Rodwell nodded to him, Hubert Stane moved up the counter, and began to give his order.

It was quite late in the afternoon when the opportunity he sought was given to him. Impelled by the nearest curiosity he had stroved over to the Indian tepees and had there encountered Miskodeed teaching a puppy-dog tricks. He had stumped to

HE DROPPED LIKE A MAN STRICKEN DEAD.

The governor's party, accompanied by the factor, was moving towards the tepees.

The party drew nearer. Stane was conscious of its attention, and the blood in Miskodeed's face was almost painful. Any one looking at them, and noting the apparent absorption of the man and the certain embarrassment of the girl, must have utterly miscomprehended the situation, and that was what happened, for a moment later, the sound of a laughing feminine voice reached him.

"Behold an idyll of the land!" He looked up with an angry light in his blue eyes. The party was just passing, and nearly every pair of eyes was regarding him curiously. And one pair, the gray eyes of the girl who had been with Ainley, met his in level glance, and in them he saw a flicker of contempt. That glance sent the blood to his face, and increased the anger which had surged within him at the laughing remark he had overheard. Ainley was among these people, and come what might he would have speech with him before them all. He stepped forward determinedly; but Ainley, who had been watching him closely, anticipated his move by falling on a fool, Stane! "You'll do yourself no good by kicking up a dust here. I couldn't come last night, but to-night at the same time I will not fail."

He turned and moved on again before Stane could reply, and the latter joined the English side, the latter inquired in a surprised voice, "You know that gentleman, Mr. Ainley?"

Stane caught the question, but the answer he did not hear, though he could guess its purport and found no pleasure at the thought of what it would be.

Again the midnight sun found him sitting behind his smoke-sundage, listening. All the songs and cries of the wild faded into silence and still Ainley had not come. Then he caught the sound of light feet running, and looking up he saw Miskodeed hurrying towards him, behind the willows. Wondering what had brought her forth at this hour he started to his feet and in that instant he saw a swift look of apprehension and agony leap to her face.

"Beware, my brother—"

He heard no more. A man rose like a shadow by his side, with lifted hand holding an ax-shaft. Before he could move or cry out the shaft descended on his uncovered head and he dropped like a man suddenly stricken dead. When he came to himself the rosy Northland night had given place to russet dawn, and he found that he was lying, bound hand and foot, at the bottom of a "Petersboro" canoe. There were three Indians in the canoe, one of whom he recognized for Miskodeed's father, and after lying for a few minutes wondering what was the meaning of the situation, in which he found himself he addressed himself to the Indian.

BABY DIES FROM BURNS

Burns suffered Wednesday afternoon by James Robert Fisher, fourteen months old son, and only child of Clarence and Clara Fisher, resulted in the child's death this morning at three o'clock, the final summons coming at the home of Mrs. Fisher's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Marshall, 1029 Eleventh street.

Wednesday afternoon about four o'clock, while the mother and grandmother were in another part of the house, the child secured a celluloid balloon, which he touched to the gas under the hot water tank in the kitchen. The flame of the celluloid balloon communicated to the child's dress and within a few seconds he was a human torch, the flames shooting high over his head.

The child's screams brought the grandmother and mother running to the kitchen. The grandmother was the first one to reach the child and she immediately rolled him on the floor to put out the flames in the burning clothing.

The partially burned clothes were hurriedly torn off by a physician summoned. It was then found that the burns on the hands, arms, face and head were severe and little hopes were held for recovery on account of the terrible shock suffered by the young child as a result of the deep burns.

The child's condition grew steadily worse and Friday morning he lapsed into unconsciousness. Death this morning ended many hours of suffering and pain.

James Robert Fisher was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Fisher, who make their home with Mrs. Fisher's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Marshall at 1029 Eleventh street. The young parents are well known and have a legion of friends who will be shocked to learn of the tragic death of the little one.

Funeral services will be held Monday from the Marshall home, with Rev. Samuel Lindemeyer in charge. Burial will be in Greenlawn.

Japan May Resume Trade With Russia

TOKIO, Nov. 17.—(By the Associated Press).—The cabinet is believed to be again by Japanese business interests to resume negotiations with Russia looking toward a resumption of trade and possibly diplomatic relations between that country and Japan.

The pressure is being brought in the belief that valuable concessions in Siberia are obtainable by Japan and that opportunities for trade are unusually bright. The government, it is believed, is likely to yield to the pressure as prospects for an understanding with the Soviet appear better than at the previous conferences concluded last summer.

Mrs. D. A. Berndt and Mrs. Warwick W. Anderson will entertain the members of the Art Circle with a one o'clock luncheon on Thursday afternoon at one o'clock at the home of Mrs. Berndt on Gallia street.

Burley Tobacco Growers Given Until December 1 To Sign Up
By vote of the Board of Directors of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association it was decided to close the books of the Association for membership agreements for the 1923 crop on December 1. Before the close of the books we want to make this final appeal to all now outside the Association to join us in the greatest effort that has ever been made to obtain a fair price for a farm product.

You Who Are Still Outside
Have enjoyed for the past two years better prices created by the co-operation of your neighbors and friends. We now feel that it is no more than fair that you should come and work with, and not against, those who have made the price for you. We appeal to you, therefore, to sign up NOW. What would the price of Burley tobacco be today without an organization? The stronger the organization, the better will be the price.
Help Strengthen The Organization
Look up some member of the Association, get a blank contract, sign and mail it to the Association at Lexington at once.
To Members Of The Association
We urge you to solicit once more your neighbors who are out and try to sign them. Let us make it 100,000 members by December 1.

Britain Opposes More Punitive Measures
LONDON, November 17.—(By the Associated Press)—The Franco-British situation has been intensified by the British government's instructions to its ambassador at Paris to inform the Ambassador's Council that Britain will not accede to the demands of France for further punitive measures against Germany.
Another overnight development in allied relations is Premier Mussolini's declaration to the Italian senate that Italy can not approve "any further occupation of German territory," and that the German people "can not be destroyed."

Although the Italian premier intimated that Italy did not contemplate a break with France, some political observers here are not so optimistic over Franco-British relations. In these quarters it is feared that the deadlock, made tighter by the British refusal to participate in the further entente cordiale which several times has hung together by a thread.
One suggestion for forcing France into line with the British viewpoint is that she be asked to pay the debt she owes that country.
France May Act Swiftly
LONDON, November 17.—(By the Associated Press)—Commenting on the relations between Great Britain and France, the Times today expresses fear that France will act swiftly in event a disagreement is reached when the council of ambassadors meet again. The Times says that even if from the French viewpoint, the situation arising from events in Germany is as grave as it is reported in Paris, precipitate, violent action can only increase the danger.
"Is it possible," the Times asks, "that the people of France should be eager to plunge deeper into the morbid confusion of Germany when serious difficulties are multiplying in the Rhineland and the Ruhr? We would say we are alarmed at the prospect of French isolation. It is not good for Europe that France should be alone. It is dangerous for France, far more dangerous than the ravings of an exhausted Germany."

The Daily Telegraph prints a statement by an unnamed British statesman, that the situation is far more critical than the British people imagine. The danger, says the commentator, lies not in a break between Great Britain and France, but in the further French military operations would become inevitable and would bring tumbling down the whole shaken structure of Germany, precipitating central Europe into turmoil. The only way to prevent such a calamity, the statement asserts, is for Great Britain to control French action. This can only be done by maintaining the entente, but without actively helping France.

CAMERAGRAMS

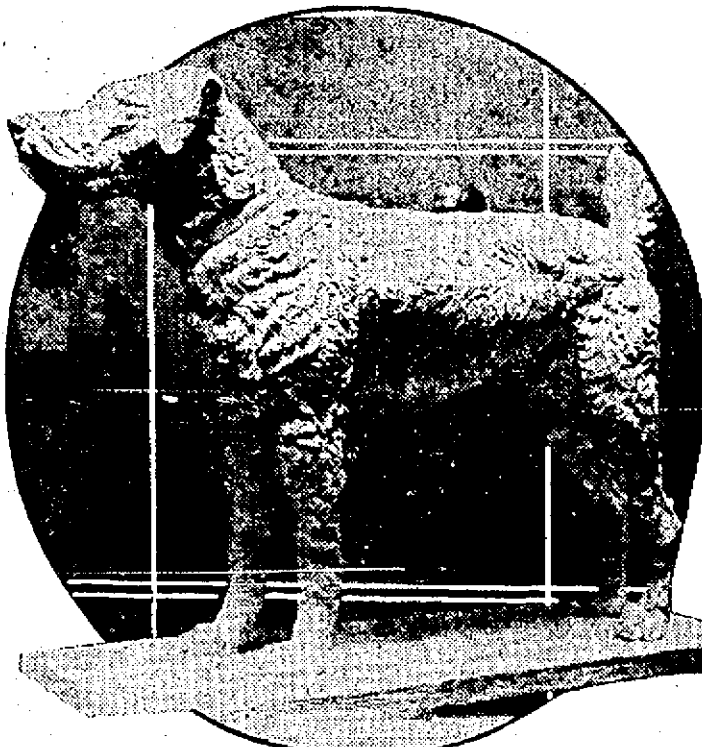

VIP-UP, UP HE GOES! You lose. This high flying canine is neither AIRDale nor BIRD dog. He's a fox terrier, name o' Waco. He is intimately acquainted with most army fliers and has flown ever since his puphood.

JAPANESE STAR. Japanese students at the University of California recently presented "Madam Butterfly." From the talent which turned out for parts, Miss Maki Utami, shown above, was selected to sing the role of Suzuki.

EYES RIGHT! This snappy looking outfit marches well enough to be West Point cadets. But they're not. They are U. S. Marines. The picture was taken when the Devil Dogs passed in review on the grounds back of the White House as Navy Day was being observed in Washington.

YADDIE BOY IN CLAY. This life-sized statue of the late President Harding's dog companion will be presented, when finished, to Mrs. Harding. It was paid for with the pennies of New England newboys and carries with it the love they had for the departed president.

SEEKS LOCAL COLOR. Miss Jeannette Flanner, well known author, says she's going to write a book in Paris. The picture was taken on board the Rochambeau. Miss Flanner will devote the whole of next year to her literary work in the French capital.

MAKING YARDS by the air route, but in an unusual way. When Wilner, halfback of Central High School eleven in Washington, saw he was about to be tackled by some of his Eastern High opponents, he catapulted through the air, executing a fancy hurdle and throwing dismay into the enemy camp.

THIS NAME IS NAPOLEON, but here, instead of being Josephine is Janet. Her father is Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of naval aviation. Miss Moffett is an aviatrix and will soon make her debut in Washington society.

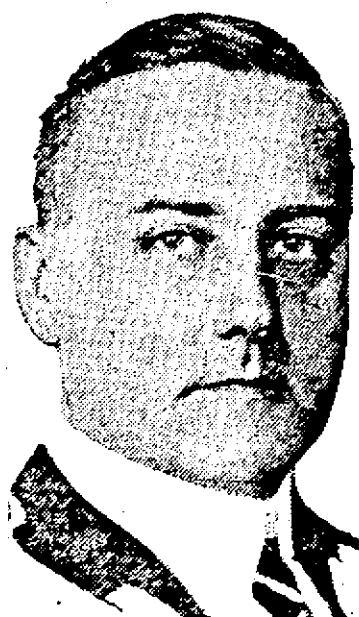

THEY DEAL DEATH and destruction from the air. Photo shows a group of Uncle Sam's Martin bombing planes in regular formation. Nothing on the ground is safe when these bombers get the range and release their bottled death.

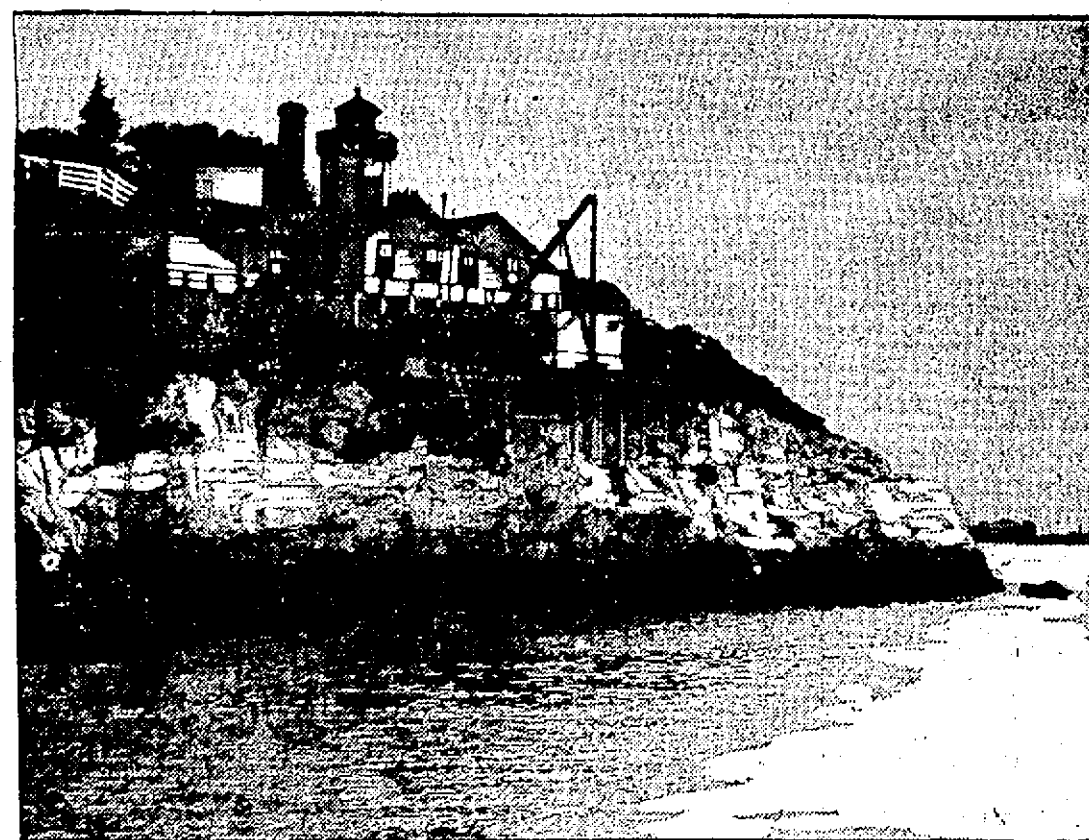

DOLORES MENDOZA is her name in this picture, but she is known to screen lovers as Blanche Sweet. The popular film actress takes the part of Dolores in her newest picture, "The Palace of the King."

CAPITAL DEBUTANTE. One of the younger set who will be presented to Washington society this winter is Miss Ruth Stoddard, daughter of Mrs. Joseph Stoddard. Her debut will be made at one of the fashionable balls scheduled in the national capital this season.

YOUNGEST OF HIS RANK. General Robert G. Davis, adjutant general of the army, youngest major general in the army. The picture was taken on his 47th birthday, Oct. 12.

THE SPANISH CALLED IT Verba Buena, but Americans know this famous landmark in San Francisco Bay as Goat Island. It is on the route of all trans-bay ferry lines, and the island itself is the location of one of Uncle Sam's most important west coast naval training stations.

SERGEI RACHMANINOFF and his two daughters. This is the most recent portrait of the celebrated pianist and composer, and introduces his two beautiful girls, Irma and Tilianna, who are the constant companions of the piano genius.

HIT BY STONE. This is Hermione, wife of the ex-king and ruler of Norway. While walking in the garden of the kaiser's grounds recently, she was severely hurt by a stone thrown at her. Police are trying to find out who made the deliberate attack.

Wide Movement and Strength On Curb

There were wide movements also in many of the industrial issues. The feature was the trading in consolidated Gas, new stock, when issued, which ranged from 58 to 115. American light and traction rose from 117½ to 130½ early in the week with a decline of over 5 points when the market turned heavy. Centrifugal pipe on an advance from 33½ to 27½ made a new high record.

Martin Improves
Charles Martin of Sohn's, Cornell, who has lain in a stupor in New York

when his machine plunged down at the embankment at the Beaver Bridge on the Scioto Trail, showed the first signs of improvement yesterday. He recovered consciousness to a slight degree yesterday morning, but relapsed after only a few moments. The young man regained consciousness again during the afternoon, but again suffered a relapse. This condition is due to concussion of the brain, according to a statement from the attending physician, Dr. Jos. A.

Johnson To Enter Primaries In Ohio, Report At Capital

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 17.—Beller was expressed here to-day that Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California, who last night announced his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination, will enter the presidential primary in Ohio in an effort to obtain votes of the Ohio delegation to the National Republican Convention.

George H. Bender, state senator of Cleveland, called at the office of Secretary of State Thad H. Brown, today, and requested information as to how he should proceed to enter the California senator as a candidate to be voted for in this state.

State Senator J. F. Burke of Elvira, a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, is said to be working with Senator Bender in his attempt to swing the delegation to Senator Johnson.

Germany Ceases All Reparations, Denies Scrapping Of Treaty

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—German reparations deliveries in kind ceased on account of her financial inability, says a semi-official statement this evening, but she holds herself bound as hitherto to all the remaining clauses of the treaty of Versailles.

"The report stating that the renunciation of the temporary cessation of reparations deliveries is that Germany no longer regards herself bound by the treaty of Versailles is incorrect," the statement says.

For pleasure or business, gentlemen prefer Baker's Smart Shoes. The pattern shown here is as comfortable as an easy chair—but with poise and distinctiveness. Men whose tastes are particular have found this pattern much to their liking—made of genuine Australian Kangaroo with oak soles and rubber heels. Helps keep them smart looking with long service and that's the basis of real shoe value. An eleven dollar value for nine. No, they won't last long at that price.

Chillicothe Fans Coming For Game

All aboard for Portsmouth! Fans that have no means of transportation to the game Sunday, should get in touch with Manager Fred "Doc" Jones, who will make reservations on the big bus which has been chartered to carry the local team to the River City. By seeing "Doc" fans had up for means of travel will get comfortable accommodations at reduced rates and at the same time be with the boys, who will provide the excitement for the Portsmouth game.

The local team will be strengthened by the presence of "Bill" Daugherty, "Hard Boiled" Smith and Teter, who were not in the game when Portsmouth played a 0-0 tie here on a muddy field.

Abe Martin On Good Clothes and Good Times

"Th' comin' year 'll be the greatest money spendin' era in th' history of this country," declared Manager Gabe Craw, when interviewed in his office in th' Melodeon Hall building. "Take our mail order business for Peck's Bad Boy, a comedy that's played my house over year for thirty-two years. Why, we'll have it put th' orchestra on th' stage! Look at th' prize fight attendance in New York, an' th' world series an' horse races crowds! Th' money spendin' orgy has already reached here. We're beginnin' now on th' best dressed year since th' landin' of th' Pilgrim Fathers. Take th' school teachers' convention this fall. A year ago such a conclusion would have looked like a bunch of immigrants, but since th' advent of th' livin' wage for teachers they wake up about th' smartest, niftiest lookin' aggregation we've ever seen short of Fifth Avenue."

Ever-buddy's now makin' money, an' they're dressin' up, an' after any-buddy dresses up, th' first thing they do is hunt some place t' go. Folks used t' stay at home 'cause they didn't have nothin' t' wear. Th' ole livin' wage only included rent an' bacon. We read a lot about th' American home, th' th' dogs, no-buddy there. Th' ain't caused by any wantin' regard for home as a ballowed institution. There's a lot of dandy homes, an' more wuz built this summer. Home's now one of th' luxuries along with clothes an' autos, but nobuddy's goin' t' dress up, th' ether goin' an' general money spendin' stand with th' advent of th' livin' wage, or rather th' dollin' up an' galvanatin' wage.

"But, Manager Craw, don't you believe, too, that th' public likes t' be humbled, jest as Barium salt?"

"Naw, it jest don't want t' miss anythin'."

Material Witness Sought In Murder Appears At Inquiry

CINCINNATI, Nov. 17.—Leon Bird, who was being sought in Dayton by the detectives working on the case there, appeared in Lebanon, O., Friday, when coroner H. E. Luntz of Warren county resumed his inquiry into the murder of Russell Sunday, whose body weighted with angle irons, was found in the Little Miami River, near Lebanon, about two weeks ago.

Bird identified the angle irons as part of a pile of such irons which was located near the Bryant home. He said that Bryant, who is employed by a railroad, had charge of the pile of irons.

Detectives in Dayton on Thursday arrested Guy Bryant, 48, and his wife, Bertha Bryant, 45, both of Dayton, in connection with the murder of Sunday. At the same time Cecil Bryant, 22, and Leonard Wilcox, a railroad employe working under Bryant, were arrested and held as material witnesses. The detectives said they were holding a warrant for Bird, who is engaged to marry Cecil Bryant, and who is wanted as a material witness.

When Mrs. Bryant was questioned concerning Bird's whereabouts she told the detectives that he had gone to Kentucky to visit his mother. In Lebanon today Bird said he had been to Kentucky, but had returned last night.

A NATION OF SPENDERS

REPROACHED commonly with being the spenders of nations-Americans show by the figures that they beat any other country on earth at saving. May be they are not so frugal as other peoples, but that they have the good sense to put by something for a rainy day is made evident in the fact that their savings deposits total to the magnificent amount of over seventeen billions.

These figures also demonstrate another thing, the power of advertising. Ten years ago savings deposits amounted to eight billions so in that time they have just doubled. Better still ten years ago there were only 12,000,000 savers, now there are 30,000,000. Even these figures do not tell all for the reason that they embrace only such persons as have accounts with financial institutions and exclude others, who invest in government securities. It must be true that these have increased a hundred fold in the decade, and their number has been estimated at 5,000,000.

And by far the greater portion of all these increases must be accredited to advertising. Nothing of late years has been so insistently drilled into the ears of the people by the papers, as the virtue and value of savings. It has had tremendous effect, but not all it should have had. Divide the $17,000,000 by the 30,000,000 savers and that gives $158 dollars apiece, a rather tidy sum, but with opportunities and the actual earnings there should be ten times the savings and twice the number of savers.

This is not said by way of complaint, but as a statement to show while splendid progress is being made there is much more room ahead.

HIS HAT IN THE RING

JUDGE DAVID L. ROCKWELL, quite a figure in Ohio politics, and manager of William G. McAdoo's campaign, makes the announcement that the New Yorker is out to win the Democratic nomination for president and the election.

Mr. McAdoo, not being at all coy about the matter, confirms the announcement.

It is a rule of politics that you must talk bravely and hopefully, no matter how hard you may be shaking in your boots. Confessing to a robust admiration for Mr. McAdoo we are not filled with enthusiasm at his prospects for nomination, and his election is another matter.

Big politicians in his party are against him, seemingly in the main. His personality does not appeal to them. He has a way of thinking for himself and carrying on as he thinks best. It would make it rather awkward for them if he were president. It takes two-thirds to nominate in a Democratic national convention and that makes it easier for the big politicians to control the nomination than it would be to boss a fractious president.

Big business, especially big finance, also looks askance upon Mr. McAdoo as a presidential possibility. His style as secretary of the treasury didn't suit them a little bit. He was too independent of the profits of big business and a trifle rude about saving money for the government, especially in the matter of selling bonds. In negotiating war loans he shattered all precedents, sold them direct to the people instead of through the big financiers.

They said Mr. McAdoo couldn't do that, but he did; they say he can not be elected president. Perhaps, time will prove them equally at error there.

Forbes says he was not drunk on a memorable occasion. He strengthens his case by not saying the other fellow was drunk.

Hi Johnson has shied his hat into the ring. That means a heap of trouble, if nothing else for Cautious Cal.

It is about three weeks until congress convenes and yet Cautious Cal hasn't dropped a word of what he will message to it. But what he says will be the pink of statesmanship. If you doubt it pick up any Republican organ the day after it is delivered and see for yourself.

John McGraw must be trying to get in right with the Portsmouth fans. He has traded for Billy Southworth.

ALREADY DONE

Murphy had carelessly left some dynamite in his cellar and in some manner it was knocked off a shelf. There was a terrific explosion. As he ascended rapidly in the air along with most of the rest of the house, Murphy made himself a solemn promise:

"If I ever get down alive again I'm going to take that damned stuff out of the cellar."

THE AUTO AGE

A small boy during his first eventful meal in a restaurant suddenly became greatly engrossed in a man at the next table who was eating himself with waffles. He turned to his parents and announced in a shrill voice:

"Mamma, I want some of those non-skid griddle cakes."

New York-Day-By-Day

BY O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 17—Above the Palace Theatre on Seventh Avenue is one of the most brilliantly lighted blocks in town at night. Here, moths seek the flame. The doorways are filled and the curbs are lined with the astonishingly blind and wicked.

Cheap sports with red-rimmed eyes, drug store cow-boys, girls with immobile masks of red and white, old white-moustached dogs, cokes and gambling house runners. It is a swirling eddy of Broadway's geyser, the pretense for those who live by their wits.

There are, downstairs enclaves, upstairs pool halls, tawdry cafes ablaze with light and third rate hotels almost pitch dark. They all seem to know each other, and one hears such names as Spike, Moe, Bluff, Les, Mame, Dot, Pansy and Pearl.

They used to tell of a rap wagon passing the corner and a loosely jointed countryman arose from his seat and shouted: "There's the feller that got my watch." In almost a minute the block was deserted. Women wearing exaggerated clothes stand about with white poodles under their arms. There are many gold teeth.

At midnight it is easy to see the majority have just come out for the first meal of the day—hot coffee and slunkers. Somehow the joints are always clean shaven. The underworld is ever well shaved. It gives them spunk.

Old men ball young women as "mama." Waiters are understanding and give a man and woman separate checks. It is plain that the pavement crowd has endured disputation for many years. With a dull sort of bravery they do not live for the day but for the hour.

Along about 2 o'clock the pavements begin to be deserted. The crowds seem to slip away as so many shadows. Where they go and what they do is one of the city's eternal mysteries. The police will tell you their trails lead to dark alleys, doorway stick-ups, badger games and other vague and sinister plottings of the Tenderloin.

New York is full of yearners—idle wives who are stretching out for something to relieve ennui. That is why every new cult here finds membership easy. They are professional "joiners" and peripatetic from one uplift movement to another. It may be to polish up the manners of the ticket office men in the theatres or for the relief of hungry cuts in Harlem. No matter what—the joiners are always ready.

He was rather unused to the ways of Broadway, but by chance met in a restaurant. He knew she was a circus girl, but she seemed so shy, and, well, not like those he read about. He made an appointment for her to have lunch. He asked her what she did on Sunday—the day off. She appeared to be avoiding him.

questioning. He wanted to know if she went to the Museum of Natural History, or perhaps to the park Mall to hear a band concert. Finally he pressed her for an answer. She had grown a little tired of his questioning, so she blurted out: "I got up Sunday morning, mix up some gin fizzes, get cock-eyed and read the funny papers."

I like the story, too, that Broadway tells of the man who took the chorus girl out to dinner. Later he told a friend: "She eats just like a canary bird—a peck at a time."

Curiosity in New York is a long time spending its force. In passing the home of Joe Ellwell, the mysteriously murdered bridge whist expert, I noticed a crowd of loiterers in front of his home. The corner policeman tells me that nearly any hour, day or night, there is a group in front of the house. Some of them are amateur detectives still hunting for a clue and others are just those who are drawn to the scene of gruesome crimes. New York murder mysteries reach a certain point then come to a full stop. The police seem to lose interest. (Copyright 1923, by The McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Doc Koko's KOLUM

A LUCRATIVE TRADE

Last night I met a smooth young guy who smeared soft soap all over me. "What is your business, sir?" says I. "Whitewashing, sir," he says, says he.

His knuckles were not big and red. From lime and hair his coat was free; "What do you whiten, sir?" I said. "Er—sepulchurs," he says, says he. —Roy Temple House.

EXPERT ADVICE

The town hall was packed for the traveling melodrama, and the village audience followed the young heroine's tribulations with breathless interest. She was having a terrible time. In the space of five short minutes she was tied to a railroad track, narrowly escaped being dissected by a buzz saw, and had been thrown over the edge of a precipice. Miraculously she escaped every time, only to fall again into the hands of the villain.

At last it appeared that she was certainly doomed. The villain led her into a lovely cave and cast her into the presence of a huge gorilla.

"Revenge!" muttered the villain. "Oh, what shall I do? What shall I do?" moaned the beautiful one. It was too much. The sleigh could never be home for another minute. Unruffled a man in the audience yelled in frenzied excitement: "Chuck him a nut, miss!"

ABOUT A FIVE-CENTER.

"Juffson gave me this cigar. He's the father of a ten-pound boy." "Good boy! His first child?" "No-o. It tastes about like the fifth."

PACKED AT HOME

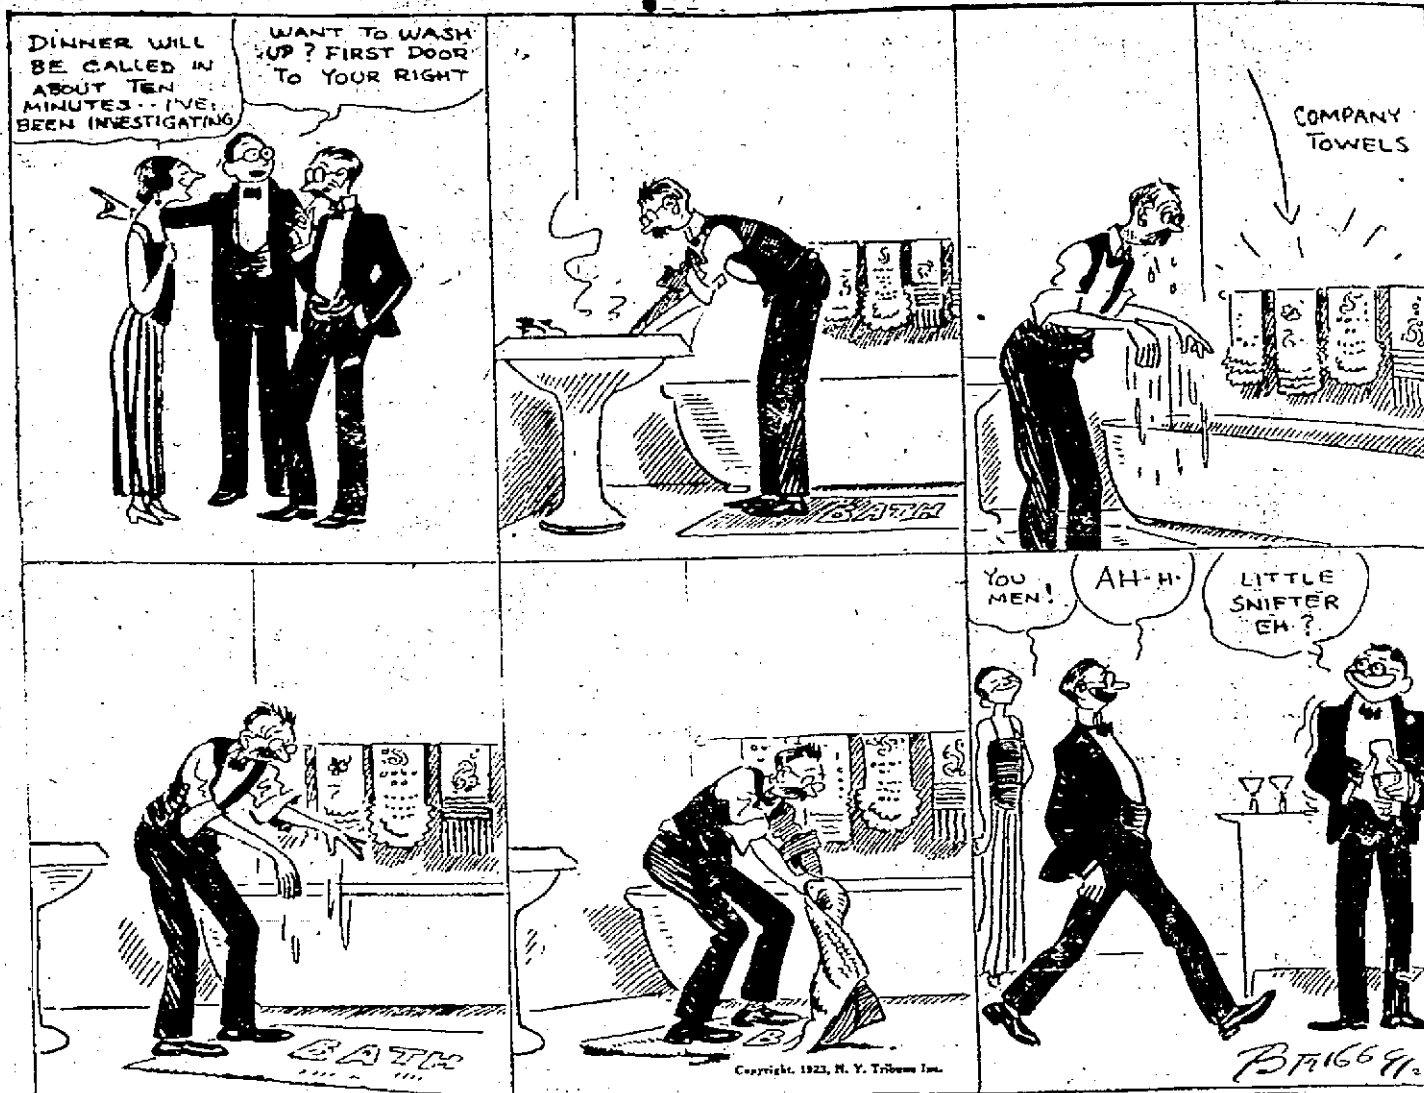

A social worker with somewhat more enthusiasm than tact, went to call upon Terrence Shea, night watchman, at his home.

"I hope, Mr. Shea," she said, "that you do not squander your money in liquor and riotous living. I am trying to interest the people of the neighborhood in the new savings bank which has just been started. May I ask where you deposit your wages?"

"I'd just as soon tell ya as tell 'em," replied Mr. Shea. "This twenty-five dollar a week I make. When I've paid the rent, the provisions and the grocery bill an' the milkman, and bought what's needed for Maggie an' me five children, I deposit the rest of the money in barrels. Mostly, ma'am, I use sugar barrels. They're bigger an' hold more. But when I can't get 'em I make shift with plain flour barrels."

OH MAN—BY BRIGGS

UNOFFICIAL MEDICAL GUIDE

HOMESICKNESS: The symptoms of this disease are a far-away look in the eyes, a depression of spirits and a general lassitude that causes the patient to dislike to engage in such pastimes as company fatigue, incubation drill and the like. The appetite is poor and the patient will frequently compare Army chow to mother's cooking in a manner uncomplimentary to the stum prepared by the bean burners. The patient is often subject to attacks of ANXIETY, after paydays. Absent treatment is the only remedy that can be given. Quarantining the ailing one in the brig just before payday will usually nip the attack in the bud.

BERTON BRADLEY'S DAILY POEM

PURE GOLD

(By Berton Bradley)
In absence of logic
Some people find sagacity.
They think the silent person is a bird
With wisdom of immensity
Because of his propensity
To sit and think and never say a word.

BEHIND that quiet front of him
And in each nod and grunt of him
They fancy there is knowledge crud-
ite.
And now and then you find it's true
He has a clever mind, it's true.
And those who think him wise have got it right!

BUT silence oft has back of it
Not thought—but utter lack of it.
That ponderous appearance is a stall.
That Jovian impassivity
Hides mental ineptitude.
There's nothing going back there at all!

SMILE, if that individual
Can dope it out to bid you all,
To thinking there's a brain beneath
his hat;
If he can only stay with it
And somehow get away with it.
The silent lad is pretty wise at that!

FAIR EXCHANGE

On a train from Canada, a nervous young man sat in the smoker, shifting his feet and gazing in mental anguish at the bag between them. Finally he approached an older man who had all the earmarks of an experienced traveler.

"Sir," he said, "this is my first trip over the border since the coming of prohibition. Now, my wife is exceedingly fond of ale and I have put in your suitcase? The thing weighs two small bottles in this bag, but I am a ton."

ELIMINATE DUPLICATION

"What do you do?" demanded the foreman of the construction gang sternly of an alleged worker. "Nothing," was the reply. "Well, there's no use both of us doing the same thing. You get busy and do something."
